ON THE COVER

- Packs of Plenty making food bags for those in need in Ritchie County.
- Animal Welfare Society of Jefferson County got a grant from the Ruth Hornbrook Memorial Fund.
- O'Neill Senior Center helping individuals live a healthy, independent, and productive life.
- Artsbridge is introducing area youth to art with the help of the Artsbridge Fund for the Arts.

While some things like politics divide people from time to time, philanthropy unites and strengthens us. When we work together for the common good and share our best ideas and resources, some pretty amazing things happen.

Consider, for example, the impact of the PACF's Civic Leaders Fellowship, a program developed in response to the collective input of area citizens who were concerned about retaining our region's next generation. In 2011, we thought, what if we put our resources together to help college-age students acquire meaningful work experience while deliberately cultivating their interest in our area? Could we stem the tide of out-migration among our educated young people?

Since launching the Civic Leaders Fellowship in 2012, ninety-eight students have completed one or more years in the program. Of those who have completed their studies, nearly 80% are employed locally or regionally and many have become more involved in their communities. Using standard economic development metrics, a team of Ohio University business development experts who are working with PACF through an ARC Power Plus Grant (the Social Enterprise Ecosystem Grant) calculates that for every $1 a donor invests into the PACF Civic Leaders Fellowship program, $32.77 is returned in value for our region's communities.

Clearly, that's measurable impact. Our Civic Leaders Fellowship is just one example of how working together, through the Parkersburg Area Community Foundation and Regional Affiliates, our personal philanthropy makes an even greater impact.

Philanthropy—it's a powerful force for good. Thanks so much for your partnership in this important work that builds a brighter future for all of us.

HERE IN OUR COMMUNITY

At the Parkersburg Area Community Foundation, we care about our neighbors and region and want to ensure that our communities continue to grow and to thrive. We are building resources for issues that may take decades to address. We strive to light a path for generations to come with our permanent endowment funds.

Created by generous community members, just like you, the PACF is our region's leader in philanthropy. We are working with people who want to make a difference in our community now and forever. Here are some of their stories.

PHILANTHROPY

noun | phi·lan·thro·py

1 : goodwill to fellow members of the human race especially : active effort to promote human welfare

2a : an act or gift done or made for humanitarian purposes

b : an organization distributing or supported by funds set aside for humanitarian purposes

Definition from Merriam-Webster*

Imagine you're in the fourth grade and you're unable to concentrate on the discussion. When you're called on to answer a question, you strain to remember what topic was being discussed. The room falls silent, as you slump in your chair feeling like a failure.

Studies show that one in six children experience school like this each day due to the lack of nourishing meals at home, thus negatively impacting their academic performance. As you might suspect, hunger is a problem that most often affects low-income families.

Area data shows a great need to improve the Foundation's grant resources so that we can better meet essential basic human needs and improve family stability. The PACF's service region's overall poverty level far exceeds the national rate (in 2017, the federal poverty level was $24,300 for a family of four). In the seven counties for which the PACF is the only community foundation funder – Calhoun, Doddridge, Gilmer, Ritchie, Roane, Wirt, and Wood – poverty rates are staggering, with nearly 20% of the population, one in five citizens, living below the federal poverty rate.

With this challenge in mind, the PACF is working with a network of partners to identify and address this critical problem. As a result, since 2013, the PACF has helped more than 5,000 area children obtain a meal or snack on the weekends; awarded more than $176,000 in grants to local food banks, church groups, and schools to provide meals, and established a regional "Hunger Fund" within the PACF that will provide grants to support important food insecurity and hunger relief programs.

Learn more about the Hunger Fund at www.pacfwv.com/HungerFund.

Wood County resident Megan Hardway participated in the Foundation's Civic Leaders Fellowship Program 2014 – 2016. "I was born and raised in Parkersburg," said Hardway. "This Program introduced me to area organizations and businesses that I didn't know existed in our community!"

A 2016 West Virginia University graduate, Hardway returned to the area to join the Chamber of Commerce of the Mid-Ohio Valley - her host throughout the Program – as a full-time staff member. "The PACF Civic Leaders Fellowship Program was a wonderful way to gain knowledge and experience in my field as well as to explore volunteer opportunities close to home," said Hardway, who is now an active participant in her community as a Board Member for SW Resources and the Parkersburg Area Jaycees.

This year, twenty-four students were placed with host employers throughout the PACF service region to gain work experience in their respective fields. More than seventy-five community members contributed time to help the students learn about civic engagement, leadership, career options, and nonprofit organizations in our area.

"This is truly an amazing program. I'm honored that I was selected to participate," said Hardway. "I encourage other area students who want to stay local and make a difference in their hometown, to apply for acceptance into the program. Not only did I find a meaningful career, but I also made lasting friendships."

Volunteer firefighters must be ready for anything: car accidents, structure fires, missing persons, gas leaks. They may need to cut a tree out of a road or triage a six-vehicle accident on U.S Route 50. When someone has an emergency in a small town, in many instances, the Volunteer Fire Department is expected to take care of it. “What is routine to us is life-altering to someone else,” said Craig Mullens, President of the Harrisville Volunteer Fire Department and a second-generation firefighter. “We are expected to do our best on someone’s worst day.”

Up-to-date equipment is critical for a fire department. The Department has received many grants from the PACF and its Ritchie County Community Foundation affiliate. Over the years, these grant awards have enabled the Department to purchase a utility terrain vehicle (UTV) and trailer, communication gear, a spare Jaws of Life® device (60% of calls are related to vehicle accidents), and turnout gear (protective pants, coats, helmets, and gloves).

Over the past five years, the PACF and its regional affiliates has awarded nearly $105,000 to local emergency service groups helping to purchase protective apparel, communication devices, and life-saving equipment. The majority of these grants were made possible by the Foundation’s Unrestricted Funds, Field of Interest Funds, and Donor Advised Funds.

Mullen has high praise for the Foundation. “It’s a great organization and it’s made possible by wonderful people. They provide for the community,” Mullens said. “Where there’s a need for a nonprofit, they seem to be able to help out.”

Community improvement work is grounded in relationships. In Doddridge County, WVU Extension Agent Zona Hutson is always working to connect people, organizations, and causes to improve the quality of life for residents.

In her work with WVU Extension, Hutson spearheads the 4-H program, and she serves on the advisory board of the Doddridge County Community Foundation (DCCF). “My organization benefits greatly from the Foundation, and I want people to know about it,” says Hutson.

Hutson’s predecessor, Everett Leggett, first advised 4-H to learn about the Community Foundation. There, he said, they would find a long-term partner for community support. “At first, I didn’t fully understand the Foundation,” Hutson admits. “After learning more, 4-H established an endowment at the Community Foundation.” This Fund now benefits from being part of a larger investment pool with greater returns. The earnings on the endowment provide support for 4-H members to attend state and national programs, among other things.

Through the Foundation’s annual Give Local MOV campaign, Hutson saw the impact of organizations working together to seek community support. Give Local MOV is a 24-hour online giving program. Organizations that benefit from an endowment at the Foundation are eligible to participate, and the Foundation raises funds to match gifts made that day. “Having people donate $50 or $100 dollars online and seeing those gifts matched - it seemed too good to be true!” said Hutson. But to her delight, 4-H achieved great success in their first year of participation. “We were so excited,” said

Hutson. “We raised $11,000 in one day!”

As an advisory board member for the DCCF, Hutson now knows in detail how the Foundation can help people create a legacy for their community. “The Doddridge County Community Foundation is a great place for you to invest,” Hutson explains. “If you want to contribute to your community this is the way.”

Hutson explains that DCCF’s partnership with the Parkersburg Area Community Foundation is a huge asset. As an affiliate, the Doddridge County Community Foundation benefits from regional administrative, investment and staff resources, enabling the local advisory board to focus on building funds for its county.

“Several years ago, a group of 4-H kids applied for a Parkersburg Area Community Foundation grant to replace mattresses at the 4-H camp. They received $10,000,” said Hutson. Over the past decade, working together, the Foundation and its Doddridge County affiliate have awarded more than $390,000 to Doddridge County programs and causes.

Gifts donated to the Doddridge County 4-H through Give Local MOV offered local youth many opportunities to volunteer in the community and attend the State Conference.

Recent grants include $4,000 to Doddridge County Community Educational Outreach Services (CEOS) to support the development of a Heritage Art Quilt Trail. The hand-painted quilt blocks produced through the project were placed at or near historically significant sites throughout the county. The project celebrates the community’s heritage and hopes to draw tourists to the county. Thanks to a $500 recent mini-grant from the Foundation, the CEOS are now developing a brochure to publicize the quilt trail.

“What I like so much about the Foundation’s grantmaking process: It’s well organized. They help with the entire process. There is an accountability to the whole process. You can trust them to share resources in a fair and equitable way. You know that donors’ dollars are being used in the right way,” said Hutson.

Through her work with the Doddridge County Extension office, 4-H, and the Community Foundation, Hutson binds together many people and organizations working to improve Doddridge County. This is the best way that she knows of to build a positive future for residents and to provide and to protect their quality of life.

“You know I’m very fortunate. When you work in a community of 8,000 people, it’s easy to make a difference, and I encourage others to make a positive difference too.”

A PASSION FOREVER REMEMBERED

“I remember telling Ruth ‘stick with me and you’ll see the world’ when we just started dating and we did just that! We hiked the Rocky Mountains, we traveled to England, Greece, Turkey, Nepal, South Africa, and so many other places,” said Ron Tepley. “Each place we went, we embraced the culture and surroundings and found inspiration that we took back to the States.” As Ron speaks, he is surrounded by paintings, pictures, and sculptures each with a special story that he is willing to share. A passion for art that his late wife, Ruth, cultivated and cared for is seen and felt throughout their home.

Ruth and Ron were both born and raised in the Cleveland, Ohio, area. “We came from two different worlds and only met because a mutual friend set us up on a blind date,” Tepley said. Ruth and Ron were married in 1953. With Ron’s Army service and later his career with Pennzoil, they lived in multiple states across the country and made time to take many trips around the world.

The Tepleys were transferred to Parkersburg in 1982 where Ruth quickly immersed herself in the community. She became a yoga instructor and a member of the First Unitarian Universalist Church of Marietta, where she served as the chairperson of the Worship Committee. She was a co-founder of Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) in Parkersburg, a member of the League of Women Voters, and a docent at the Parkersburg Art Center.

Ruth was an avid gardener and hiker. She co-founded the Garden Tour of Parkersburg. Her last hike was in the foothills of the Himalayas in Nepal in 1998. Then in 2000, Ruth was diagnosed with Pancreatic Cancer. She lost her battle and passed away in 2001, leaving behind a loving husband, four children, and a love for arts and culture.

“I wanted to do something that would honor my wife and forever support the things she loved most,” Tepley said. The Ruth M. Tepley Memorial Fund was created in 2001 with the PACF to provide perpetual funding for grants for projects and purposes related to educational study in the fields of writing, painting, drawing, sculpture, and geology throughout the Foundation’s service area.

Since its creation, the Ruth M. Tepley Memorial Fund has made grants to increase area students’ access to, and participation in, the arts. Grants to support the Parkersburg Art Center, West Virginia University at Parkersburg, and two schools in Parkersburg, (Van Devender Middle School and Blennerhasset Elementary School) are giving local students the opportunity to experience hands-on learning with themed curriculum introducing students to the importance of art history, creative problem solving, aesthetic theory, and multiculturalism. Grants from this Fund have built a foundation of developmental skills in the visual arts and opened new doors for local students.

“The Foundation knows the community and what projects are best to support with resources from Ruth’s fund,” Tepley said. “That’s what I like. I know what Ruth loved will forever be supported in this area because of this partnership.”

The after-school art program at Van Devender Middle School gives first through fifth grade students in Wood County Schools an opportunity to learn and experience the visual arts.

“Back when I was in college, I worked in the comptroller’s office,” said Lowell Jackson. “I would see them passing out scholarships and that’s where I first got the idea about making a difference for someone. It was 35 years later when I finally partnered with the Community Foundation here in the area.”

Lowell grew up in Pennsboro. After serving in the Army from 1957 to 1959, he was later hired by Ford Motor Company. After 30 years in southeast Michigan, he retired and moved back home to West Virginia, this time to Mineral Wells. At that point, he was thinking about ways to help Ritchie County.

“We talked with the PACF about setting up a fund that would help us [Lowell and his late wife, Wilda] to make a lasting difference in the community,” said Jackson. “The Foundation staff described all that was possible with a partnership. And so that’s what we did—we set up a fund and were the first donors to the PACF’s Ritchie County Community Foundation affiliate.”

Jackson’s Donor Advised Fund enables him to recommend grants to projects that help the area and its residents. Through his fund, Jackson has helped to improve schools and volunteer fire departments, provided food for the needy, and supported community centers. As part of the PACF, the fund benefits from a consolidated investment pool, which generates income from which meaningful grants can be made.

Jackson plans to leave a gift in his estate to his Fund to continue supporting the causes he cares most about long after he is gone. According to Jackson his reasons for giving were simple: because there was a need and because he could. “The great thing about having a fund managed by the Foundation,” said Jackson, “is that it will give forever.”

LEGACY SOCIETY

Thank you to the following Legacy Society members for their generosity, vision, and inspiring example that their gifts set for others and the benefit of our community.

A photograph of a weathered wooden barn with a gabled roof, situated in a grassy field. The scene is bathed in the warm, golden light of a setting or rising sun, which is visible as a bright glow on the right side of the image. Bare trees are scattered around the barn, and their long shadows are cast across the field. The sky is a clear, pale blue.
